About

Jen is a discovery counsel with experience supporting corporate clients on matters involving information governance, device use policies, and litigation preparedness. She plays a key role in managing discovery workflows—including collections, review, and productions—for corporate litigation across a variety of industries, including healthcare, retail, and professional services. Her experience also extends to assisting clients in navigating congressional investigations.

With a strong focus on project management and team coordination, Jen contributes to the success of complex legal matters by delivering efficient, defensible solutions. She is committed to building lasting relationships with clients and continues to grow her practice by staying attuned to evolving technologies and regulatory requirements.
